AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has demonstrated its power of cure for all diseases of the blood.

The Harpooner's Story.

New Bedford, June 1, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & Co.—Twenty years ago I was a harpooner in the North Pacific, when five others of the crew and myself were laid up with scurvy. Our bodies were blanted, gums swollen and bleeding, teeth loose, purple blotches all over us, and our breath seemed rotten. Take it by and large we were pretty badly off. All our lime-juice was accidentally destroyed, but the captain had a couple dozen bottles of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA and gave us that. We recovered on it quicker than I have ever seen men brought about by any other treatment for scurvy, and I've seen a good deal of it. Seeing no mention in your Almanac of your Sarsaparilla being good for scurvy, I thought you ought to know of this, and so send you the facts.

Respectfully yours, RALPH Y. WINGATE.

The Trooper's Experience.

Masven, Basutoland (S. Africa), March 7, 1883.

DR. J. C. AYER & Co.—Gentlemen: I have much pleasure to testify to the great value of your Sarsaparilla. We have been stationed here for over two years, during which time we had to live in tents. Being under canvas for such a time brought on what is called Bit t country "veldt-sores." I had those sores for some time. I was advised to take your Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which made my sores disappear rapidly, and I am now quite well.

Yours truly, T. K. DOREN,
Trooper, Cape Mounted Riflemen.

THE DUKE OF BRUNSWICK.

His Last Joys Were His Diamonds and His Lawsuits—An Ignoble Existence

The chief of the Guelphs spent nearly all his solitary day, attired in fantastic, flaming dressing-gowns, selecting from among the thirty waxen simulacra of his own face, the wig, the eyebrows, the complexion of the day. Dyed, rouged, curled and scented, the Duke of Brunswick went out at sunset in one of his famous chocolate colored carriages; dined at some fashionable restaurant, and spent the evening at the little theater where authors are counted necessary vehicles for the exhibition of ankles. At home—if his gorgeous folly could be called—he kept no kitchen. A cook was necessarily a poisoner in his eyes. He mixed his morning chocolate himself; his milk was brought from suburban farms in a sealed silver can; and his body servant was compelled to drink and digest ere he himself touched it. He was, d'ailleurs, a modest man at glass and platter. He drank nothing but small beer, and his worst orgies were formidable feasts of fruit and ices. He used to give a louis now and then in order to walk round the cellars of the Cafe Tortoni and eat ices as he chose, dipping his own spoon here and there as the fancy found him. He had always two or three bonbonnieres in his pockets for his personal use. He offered nothing to ladies; he never allowed his equerries, his oldest servitors, to smoke in his presence. And this was his life, these his habits, during the "twenty years of prosperity" ungrateful France owes her second Cæsar. That Cæsar disappointed his hopes a year after the plebiscitum that made him Emperor. The famous pact between the pretenders in London was found in Paris to be absolutely impracticable. And by degrees the successful Emperor "dropped" the Duke. He became a compromising friend, even for the empire. He was the laughing stock, almost the eyesore, of Paris. Surrounded by hireling sycophants he lost all taste for the society of his equals. He shut himself up with his diamonds, fondling them foolishly like the misers of old romance. His diamonds and his lawsuits were the last joys of the last Guelph. He had lost all human sympathies. He had renounced friends, family, personal dignity. He would order his negro servant: "Draw your sword and cut through the canaille." He refused all communications from his daughter and her children, and in the most scandalous litigation of this century he contested for four years his grandchildren's right to a penny of his fortune. That fortune—the most useless that ever was in human hands—was to go to the Prince Imperial—so long as the empire should be prosperous. Directly after Sedan the will was shamelessly revoked, and the news of the revocation came to the Emperor during his last walk at Chiselhurst from Camden-place to the station. And the end, at Geneva, was worthy the long, frivolous, foolish, unfortunate life. He spent months there during the worst crisis that have shaken modern Europe, fondling his diamonds and dressing. He left his millions to the capital of Calvinism, because it was the only one likely to put up his statue in a public place, even at the price he paid for the perpetuation of his incommensurable and lifelong folly.—Temple Bar.

Buddhists in New York.

[New York Mail and Express.]

A reporter was favored with a conversation with one of the members of this strange society. He is a man past 50, well preserved, and slightly baldheaded. He looked like a prosperous merchant. His eyes were peculiar in expression. Of a pale blue color, they resumed at times a languid, dreamy expression which might indicate the effects of opium rather than great mental abstraction.

"Buddhism," he said, "is not a religion to take root in America immediately. It may flourish among a few who are highly intellectual, but the masses are too superstitious at present to suppose that a religion founded before Christianity and in India can be anything else than idolatry. In New York there are a few of us who believe in Buddhism, but we do not worship idols nor have priests to perform those mysterious rites which they often use as a means to degrade the beautiful doctrines which emanated from the original teachings of Gautama, the founder of Buddhism. Our society has for its object the discussion and interchange of thoughts between persons who believe in a religion and a faith which had millions of followers long before the prophet Christ was born. The reason we meet quietly is simply to avoid show or invite invidious criticism. We are not proselyting nor aiming to overthrow established order and law.

"Our belief is not subversive of good morals, nor detrimental to the advancement of civilization. Indeed, as we interprot Buddhism I consider its teachings beneficial to progress and an aid to science. Few people are Rosicrucians, and those who are generally come under the head of clairvoyants or spiritualists. All true Buddhists are Rosicrucians. We hold that we can aid science by proving that persons can be seen at a distance. It will be a rapid advance in metaphysical science, so to speak, and some day be as easily explained as mirages are now. The attraction of gravitation was a power unknown once, but after being discovered it appeared quite plain and matter of fact. Why cannot the brain, assisted by the infinite power which gives it reason and imagination, pierce through space and see objects? It seems visionary, I know, to advance such ideas, yet one day will become realities. A new era in the world has commenced. Mind, thought, and manner, all are gradually being impregnated with the conditions of a new existence. There must be a new religion, a universal creed, to follow the order of these changes, and the primitive doctrines of Gautama furnish what is needed."

ANCHORS AND CHAINS.

A Heavy Load in Themselves, and Why Second-Hand Ones Are Preferred.

Several large piles of rusty iron anchor-chains filling the sidewalk in front of a shipsmithing shop caused a reporter to step within the building and ask how many pounds of iron a vessel usually carries as a part of its outfit.

"Many vessels," said the proprietor, whose shop is one of the oldest in the city, "carry as much as forty-eight thousand pounds each. To a landsman this naturally seems a pretty big load in itself, but it forms an essential part of a ship's make-up. Of this thirty-six thousand pounds are usually in chains and twelve thousand pounds in anchors. The Henry B. Hyde, a large ship built in Maine, carries two anchors, one of which weighs seven thousand pounds and the other six thousand pounds. Every vessel, as well as steamship, is obliged to carry five anchors, a spare one and two stream anchors besides the one in regular use. Our largest anchors weigh eight thousand pounds each, while we have them as light as twenty-five pounds. Some of the largest chains are composed of links the iron of which is two and a half inches in diameter.

"Yes, we only deal in second-hand materials, but we have fitted up some handsome vessels all the same. The George W. Curtis, a new clipper ship of eighteen hundred tons, has our anchors, as also has the Albert G. Ropes, twenty-five hundred tons, and the Henry B. Hyde. We make a specialty of second-hand material of this kind because we find that there is a big demand for it. One reason is that freights are low and ship-owners are obliged to economize like other people, and another and more important one is that a captain prefers second-hand anchors and chains because they have been fully tested. It wouldn't do on ship-board to have a defective rigging of this kind, and there is no real way to test anchors except by use. Consequently we find it a rule that thoroughly tested second-hand anchors and chains find a ready sale.

"New Yorkers would open their eyes in surprise were they to know to what extent the business has grown. Why, we alone have on hand at this time one hundred tons of one and one-quarter inch chains and between six hundred and seven hundred tons in anchors, besides tons of other second-hand iron material used on ship-board. The stuff you see in here and out on the walk, large as it seems, does not comprise but a small part of the stock, for over in Brooklyn we have a lot one hundred feet square filled with it.

"Do insurance men have anything to do with a ship's outfit? I should say they did. Why, no anchor can be put aboard ships nowadays unless it suits the requirements of the inspector of insurance. They are very particular about this, and a ship or steamer must have just so many shots of chain and just so many anchors, of weight and size to compare with the size of the vessel, or things won't go. A number of vessels have lately taken to the use of a patent anchor which the insurance companies allow. This is one-third the weight of the ordinary anchor, and has more power, for the crown is movable, being on a swivel. The reason an anchor's chain is always in sections of ninety feet is to enable the captain to know just how much of it he has cast out."—N. Y. Mail and Express.

SARCASTIC PEOPLE.

Two Kinds Who Indulge in Sarcasm, One Breezy and the Other Rude.

There is a class of people brighter and smarter than their fellows, who are called sarcastic, and they are very often the spice and sauce of any assemblage of which they may form a part. I know sarcastic people, and I have been a target which has caught some of their keen arrows, but I never felt more than a transitory twinge, so long as the sarcasm was polite and tempered by fun. In fact, I like sarcastic people because they are breezy and invigorating, and healthy. It is those so-called sarcastic people who are simply rude and plain spoken that I am set against. Instead of having the wit to generalize a proposition, they propound it abruptly, and when they wish to apply a principle of ridicule, they fail to grasp its meaning, and instead of making a bright, keen blade of it which cuts artistically, they make a blunt-edged instrument of it, which does its work brutally. These people are to real sarcastic people what a coarse, ill-bred butcher is to the finest surgeon who ever wielded a scalpel. They lack the finer sensibilities of wit, and call direct personal thrusts sarcasm. They are the sluggers of conversation and are quite as disagreeable in their field as the slugger in the prize ring with an artistic knocker. They usually laugh at their own ugly thrusts and are quite ready to ridicule a physical deformity, as to turn the laugh on an erroneous conclusion or an easily assailable argument. Their eyes are open but they are not keen sighted, and they win, when they do win, by resorting to weapons the master of sarcasm would scorn to use.—Merchant Traveler.

Origin of "To Go Snacks."

[New Orleans Times-Democrat.]

During the prevalence of the great plague in London, 1665, there was a notorious body-searcher, or plunderer, of dead men's clothes, etc., named Snacks. The progress of the disease so rapidly increased his business that he found more upon his hands than he could conveniently perform, and therefore offered half his profits to any one who would assist him in his hardened occupation. They who accepted his offer were said to go with Snacks. Hence the origin of the expression.

Chicago Ledger: The man who hesitates is lost.

MALARIA.

Its Cause and a Description of Its Abiding Places.

Malaria has been known for ages. It occurs in hot temperatures and near swamps and marshes, near shallow and muddy ponds. Heat and water are the principal forces that induce this annoying and often severe malady. Like nearly all other diseases, it comes in various degrees of severity, depending upon the activity and abundance of the causes and the susceptibility of those who are exposed to its influences. Heat and water induce vegetal and animal decay. The process of decay generates certain germs, that are so light as to be easily wafted long distances on the air.

As warm seasons lengthen and high temperature strengthens, the malaria becomes more and more severe and fatal. Malaria generated in marshes covered with a mixture of salt and fresh water, is often unusually severe. Malaria is usually limited to low grounds. Heat and moisture are the ordinary causes of malaria. When once generated it spreads slowly through the air, or by it is wafted to adjacent lands, unless its course is checked by forests, walls and hills. Malaria may travel long distances by water, and spread over localities that otherwise would be healthy. Fortunately, however, the extension of these germs is not always present. They sink to the surface of the earth as the shades of night come on, but rise again in the late morning hours. Those who reside in malarial districts are less apt to suffer, when the sun and air has lifted them from the earth.

The severity and fatality of malarial fever depends upon the heat, moisture and the amount of vegetal decay occurring in company. And so it happens that it is more mild in moderate temperatures, and more severe and pernicious in high. Malarious maladies may be checked, or cured, if those affected by them move to some more genial climate. Even if cured, the sufferer may be revisited by the disease so long as he remains under the influence of the cause. He can not fully regain his former strength of mind and body, but these will gradually lessen until he can no longer live. It may not quickly and greatly impair health, but may often induce other maladies that ultimately weaken the system and unfit it to meet and repel maladies. Children and adults should always be kept well and vigorous, that they may be able to repel the many evil influences to which they are exposed. A poor supply and a poor kind of food will diminish this power of resistance to exhausting influences.

These facts indicate what those should do who live in malarial districts, and wish to resist influences so disastrous to health and life. With all the efforts to resist these influences, the disease may come and art can not entirely remove its severity, but may greatly mitigate it. One means of doing so is to largely diminish the amount of moisture in the soil on which they live. Dwellings should be placed on high and well drained lands. The drains should be so deep as to remove moisture from the subsoil. Drainage contributes not only to early and remunerative crops, but to health and comfort. Houses should be so placed that the prevailing winds may not drive malarial influences into them, or into their vicinity. The more distant they are from malarial sources of disease, the surer they are to be free from this source of disease and suffering. Avoid, then, slowly moving and muddy rivers, whose shores are widely covered with watery and decomposing vegetable and animal materials. If houses must be built in malarial localities, encircle them with growing trees that naturally absorb large quantities of moisture, and so remove one cause of generating malaria. The location of a dwelling, then, should be well drained. It should be encircled, but not densely shaded, by rank growing plants or trees. Even in the temperate zones we perceive bad odors rising from cesspools and sewers in the early morning and late evening hours.

Those, then, who reside in malarial districts should guard against exposures to malaria whilst the sunny rays are absent. Experience shows that very little, if any, danger is incurred, if exposed during the warm parts of the day. As malaria is heavier than air it creeps upon the surface and rises as the expanded air lifts it up. And we find it safer in malarious districts to enter the outer air at midday than in the early morning hours. And then again as malaria sinks in the evening and keeps near the surface of the earth, it rarely is found above four feet above the surface. We may inhale it if we sleep near the level of the ground. Upper rooms are always safer, freer from malaria than the lower ones. Our readers must see the use of keeping the house warm and dry, and the adjacent lands free from decaying materials.

In many localities in our prairie lands the water used for drinking is impure, especially when it is drawn from wells that are near cesspools and sewers and other collections of dirt and filth. If such water must be drank, let it be well boiled so as to remove all impurities.—C. A., in Western Rural.

New York's Loss.

[Chicago Tribune.]

New York has suffered a grave loss in the death of Emperor, a horse trained to conduct himself properly when ridden by a grand marshal in a procession. The average grand marshal is not perfectly at home on his curveting steed, yet the average grand marshal wants his steed to curvet for effect's sake. Emperor would do the thing imposingly, yet with safety to his rider. He would enable a shuddering grocer when on his back to look like a field marshal, and knew enough to take always his proper place in the procession. It will be perceived what a loss the death of such a horse must be. Steeds trained to carry grand marshals imposingly without throwing them are among the crying needs of the age.

DANGER OF COVETOUSNESS.

The desire to become independent financially, or even the wish to possess millions, is creditable if the means used to gain the desired end are honorable. But when a man becomes envious and covetous of his neighbor's possessions and studies by day and lays awake at night planning how he shall accomplish his desire to possess dishonestly that which belongs to another, he becomes a monomaniac on the subject. His mind becomes diseased and evil passions take possession of him, and in his wild and unholy determination to gain the coveted wealth he will not stop to imbue his hands in blood.

The cruel and wanton murder of Dr. Powers of San Benito, on the 17th of last month, was the result of covetousness. The man Prescott, desiring to possess lands which he was not willing to pay for—property which he wished to acquire by dishonest means—went before the United States Land Office and committed perjury to attain his ends. When Prescott learned that Dr. Powers, a neighbor, was cognisant of the fraud, the evil spirit which had prompted him to swear falsely now urged him on to cruelly murder the man whom he feared would expose him in his illegal acts. Not possessing the daring to do the deed alone, he organized a band of followers who shot his victim to death. In consequence, the noose not only threatens his own neck but dangles in close proximity to a score of others. No doubt some of the younger men who composed the gang that committed the dastardly deed were so wrought upon by Prescott that they thought they were doing a righteous act and did not realize the atrocity of their crime until too late. Thus has the covetousness of one man been the ruination of many.

Any man with health and possessing industrious and economical habits can, in the course of a few years, make himself and family comfortable by fair and honest means. If he cannot, he had better remain poor all his days than endeavor to acquire wealth dishonestly.

Beware of encouraging covetous thoughts and desires if they intrude their hideousness upon you. Drive them away. Cultivate none but healthy meditations, which will insure a happy, honorable life and the respect of your fellow man.

A TRAVELING correspondent of the "Resources of California" attempts in its last number to write up Sonoma county. He makes a miserable failure of the job in so far as this section of the county is concerned. Glen Ellen, one of the most noted wine districts in the State, is not even mentioned, while Sonoma is barely skimmed over. He tells his readers that Driscoll & Co., C. Aquilla, Thos. Nann and Chanet & Co. have extensive wineries here. The way this correspondent murders the names of some of our leading wine men will cause every man woman and child in this community to smile. Driscoll, Aquilla, Nann, Chanet is good! But Dressel, Aguillon, Nau and Chauvet are undoubtedly the parties he has reference to. Say, Wentworth, the next time your correspondent happens along this way advise him to steer clear of the wine cellars, and if your advice is followed we have no doubt his articles will be less muddled in the future.

A DECISION was rendered by the Supreme Court last Friday in favor of the State Board of Equalization, which body had petitioned for a writ of mandate to compel Fleet Strother, Auditor of the city and county of San Francisco, to recognize the increased assessment of 12½ per cent. made by it some time since. This decides the constitutionality of the "boost" given to the tax levy in several counties by the State Board of Equalization.

PROTEST FROM THE STUDENTS.

Ever since the establishment of the University of California efforts have been made by those who have their money invested in private educational enterprises in the different towns and cities of the State to cast discredit upon the State University. Reports have been circulated through certain newspapers that the University students are guilty of aiding and abetting the violation of the law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors within two miles of the University. It has even been asserted that the students are in the habit of visiting saloons and holding midnight carousals on the sly. While this may be true as regards two or three, whose depravity would be bound to crop out no matter how severe the rules governing them, the balance, numbering several hundred young men, are as moral a set of students as can be found in any institution of learning in the United States. These false reports, aside from working a great injury to one of the foremost educational institutions in this State, has also reflected discredit upon the students as a body, who, in order to place themselves right before the public, recently held a meeting, and passed the following resolutions, there being but three dissenting votes:

WHEREAS, A false impression regarding the moral character of the University students prevails through out the State, and the people generally believe the students aid and abet the violation of the two mile liquor law; and

Whereas, this false impression injures very materially the reputation of the University and deters many from reaping the benefits which a generous State provides; and,

Whereas, a protest against the violation of the University liquor law has been signed by nearly all the students of the University; and

Whereas, the students think that this law should be enforced, not because they deem it necessary for the preservation of their present good moral status, but because in common with all good citizens they desire to see the laws of our State respected; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the students of the State University of California, in mass meeting assembled, hereby endorse said protest as the expression of the student body. And be it further

Resolved, That we most emphatically deny that there is any truth in the impression prevailing in the minds of many regarding the immoral condition of the students. We feel assured that the moral status of this University will bear favorable comparison with that of any other similar institution in the United States. In order that the people of California may justly and clearly understand our position, be it further

Resolved, That copies of the "protest" and these resolutions be forwarded for publication to the leading journals of the State.

STATE elections were held last Tuesday in New York, New Jersey, Colorado, Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Virginia and Pennsylvania.

The Democratic candidate for Governor in New York was elected by 11,000 majority, the Republicans securing the State Legislature.

In Virginia, Gen. Fitz Hugh Lee was elected Governor by 25,000. Here the Democrats swept everything before them.

Connecticut and New Jersey were carried by the Republicans.

The usual Democratic majority was rolled up in Mississippi.

Massachusetts was carried by the Republicans by 22,000 majority.

In Pennsylvania, Quay (R.), for State Treasurer, the only State officer voted on, was eleted by over 30,000.

Maryland went Democratic and Colorado Republican.

A TERRIBLE accident happened at Pacheco, 12 miles from Petaluma, about 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. While some workmen were engaged in moving a house on the ranch of Mrs. Velasco the wind blew the building over, killing a young man named Costello instantly, and probably fatally injuring J. W. Post, both of Petaluma.

THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

SANTA ROSA, MONDAY, November 3, 1885.

The Board met in regular monthly session in their chambers in the Court House. The meeting was called to order at 10:20 A. M. Present—Supervisors Ellis, Allen, Coulter, O'Hara and Connelly. The minutes of the last session were read and approved.

The bill of John T. Baldwin for $82 95 for repairs on bridge over San Antonio creek, performed last September, was again brought up, and Mr. Allen spoke at length in favor of allowing the bill. Mr. Geary, on behalf of the people of the district over the creek where the bridge was built, opposed the motion, claiming that the repairs were done in opposition to the road-master of the district. The matter was laid over for special action and consideration till Wednesday next.

A report of the viewers of the new road from the Sonoma and Napa county line over lands of Russell, Lang, Dods and others, was, on motion of Supervisor Coulter, received, placed on file, and Tuesday, December 8th, at 1 P. M. set for special action and consideration in regard to it.

On motion of Supervisor Connelly, the report of the viewers of the proposed new toad in Bodega township, from Meekers mills to intersect the Coleman valley road, was placed on file, and Tuesday, December 8th, at 3 P. M. set for special action and consideration of the same.

The reports of the Roadmasters of their respective districts having been examined and found correct, the following bills were allowed: Geo. H. Black, $20; G. W. Burris, $121 13; Emsley Fine, 229 40; James Patrick, $27 53; H. A. Russell, $203 20; W. F. Harris, $33 50.

A communication was received from District Attorney Allen, stating that the following amounts were collected for legal licenses: For August, $458 73; September, $672 08; October, $702 78. This includes $45 under the new ordinance. These amounts were turned into the County Treasury as collected. The communication further stated there is about $1,000 still due, which can only be collected by suit, and that, if according to an instruction given by the Board at their last session, they intend to deprive the office of the District Attorney of any help, is carried out, it would be impossible for him to collect the delinquent licenses, as the law requires him to keep open the District Attorney's office all the time, and he would be required to appear in different parts of the county in prosecuting cases connected with the collection of said licenses.

Supervisor Coulter offered a motion directing the District Attorney to proceed at once and institute such suits as will compel the immediate payment of over due licenses.

The motion was unanimously adopted.

The report of J. Claypool, Superintendent of the County Farm, for the months of August, September and October having been examined by Supervisor O'Hara and found correct, it was placed on file and his bill of $501 91 allowed.

J. M. Roney's bill of $12 was allowed.

The report of Coroner King for the month of October was accepted and placed on file.

The monthly report of O. T. Baldwin, Justice of the Peace of Petaluma, was read, accepted and placed on file.

A petition was read from Antonio Rafael, asking that the boundary line between Iowa and Wilson school districts be changed so as to place him in the latter, as his children are small and are now compelled to walk a long distance to school. The petition was placed on file, and December 7th, at 2 P. M., set for special consideration of the same.

A petition was read, signed by citizens of Petaluma, asking that Mrs. J. Wise Smith of that place be placed on the indigent list, and that an allowance of $15 per month be granted for her support.

The petition was granted.

A petition was read asking that a Mrs. Fitzhugh of Petaluma be put on the indigent list.

The Board so ordered, and an allowance of $6 per month was granted.

The Board then adjourned till 9 A. M. Tuesday.

The jury in the case of ex-Supervisor Houser, tried last week in the Superior Court for misappropriation of funds, failed to agree and were discharged. They stood eight for conviction and four for acquittal. A retrial will take place on 18th instant. It is doubtful if a jury can be drawn in the county that will agree on a verdict.

The City Trustees, in considering the communication of the Hon. D. O. Shattuck in regard to the Protestant Cemetery, came to the conclusion they had no jurisdiction over any cemetery lying outside of the city limits. The general management and control of all such cemeteries is in the Board of Supervisors of the county in which they are situated.

The Sonoma Brass Band have elected the following officers for the ensuing term: President, J. H. Albertson; Secretary, L. Breitenbach; Treasurer, F. R. Corbaley; leader, Charles Ward. Trustees—Jesse Burris, J. J. Wystyrk and F. L. Clark. The band still retains Prof. Myers as teacher, and under his instructions are making rapid progress.

From all we can learn efforts are making for a pleasant time at the Fair to be held by the ladies of the Congregational Church in Union Hall, on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, November 17th and 18th. Besides some of the best talent of our valley, talent from abroad is expected. One of the especial features will be that on one evening the programme will be filled almost entirely by children.

T. S. Glaister, on his place about four miles from Sonoma, picked this season from one vine of the Chili Rose variety three hundred pounds of grapes. The same vine, which is ten years old, yielded 250 pounds last year. His entire vineyard, consisting of 14,000 bearing vines, produced on an average four and one-half tons to the acre, which for an off season may be considered a pretty fair yield.

Glen Ellen is to have a meat market, fruit and vegetable stand. By reference to advertisement in another column it will be seen that the same will be thrown open to the public next Thursday. The proprietor, J. W. Gibson, is well known to every body up that way and of course needs no introduction from us. Suffice it to say, he is a live energetic man and if anybody can succeed in an undertaking it is our friend Jim.

The case of the People vs. Henry Schwartz, charged with forcible entry, again came up before Justice Brown of Santa Rosa last Tuesday, where it had been transferred from Glen Ellen. On motion of the District Attorney the case was dismissed, that officer claiming and the Judge holding that there was not sufficient grounds on which to prosecute. Rather a late time of the day for making the discovery

The rains which have fallen the past week have raised the spirits of the farmers in this valley. They say the season never started in so auspiciously. Particularly is this so as regards the outlook for the grape crop. The absence of frost the past month has been of great advantage to the vines. Stockmen, too, are rejoicing as the green feed which was started by the rains during the middle of last month will receive a further impetus by the rainfall of the past few days.

MEETING OF CITY TRUSTEES.

The City Marshal Authorized to Institute Proceedings for the Collection of Poll Taxes.

The Board of Trustees for the city of Sonoma met in regular session at their usual meeting place last Wednesday evening. The following were present: Trustees McHarvey, Weyl, Wegner, Cornelius and Clerk Corbaley.

The minutes of the last regular and adjourned meetings were read and approved.

It was moved by Trustee Weyl and seconded by Trustee Cornelius that all dog tags sold for the year 1884 be good and remain in force for the year 1885. Carried.

A warrant was ordered drawn in favor of F. R. Corbaley, which had been assigned to him by George Estes, for $49 45, being the balance of his bill passed at the last regular meeting.

The following bills were received and ordered paid: Ed. Gillen, $15 45; H. H. Granice, $28 70; F. Breitenbach, rent, $5, F. R. Corbaley, services and supplies, $92 50; G. W. Sparks, services, $3 05; T. Ryan, labor on ditches, $23; George Estes, street work, $47 40.

On motion of Trustee Weyl, seconded by Trustee Cornelius, the Marshal was instructed to bring suit in all legal cases to enforce the payment of street poll taxes and to employ an attorney when necessary. The motion prevailed.

The Marshal's report for the month of October was received and placed on file.

The meeting then adjourned.

Fishing Excursion.

A party of nine, composed of F. R. Corbaley, City Marshal Breitenback, Baurie Spencer, Robert J. Pauli, John Wilson, Amil Pauli, Otto Ehrlich, George Engler and the INDEX-TRIBUNE scribe, on Saturday afternoon last, repaired to the landing below Embarcadero, where they embarked the following morning for a two-days' cruise on San Pablo and San Francisco Bays. The fast-sailing sloop "Gazelle," Captain Hauto, master, was chartered for the occasion, and she sustained on this occasion her well-earned laurels in many a yachting contest, as being one of the fastest sailers on the coast. All the well-known fishing grounds skirting the shores of the bay were visited, but with indifferent success, the biggest catch made by any single individual of the party being that of Marshal Breitenbach. But it is strongly suspected that he purchased those fish from Italian fishermen. Ah, Louis, my boy, you are a sly coon, but those red rock cod were a dead give away. They are never caught inside the Heads. Notwithstanding the fish refused to be attracted by the seductive bait a jolly good time was had by all on board and the pleasures of the trip will not soon be forgotten.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL.

Miss Etta Raschen was visiting friends in San Francisco this week.

Miss Belle Finley of San Francisco is the guest of Miss Mary McHarvey.

Miss Lillie Ruffner of Healdsburg, niece of Mr. Ruffner of this place, is visiting friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stetson of San Francisco were visiting relatives in this place the past week.

Miss Mamie McAndrews of Santa Rosa, who has been visiting friends in Sonoma the past month, returned home last Tuesday week.

Last Wednesday evening a number of the members of Valley of the Moon Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and invited friends came together at Union Hall, the occasion being the drawing of the beautiful oil painting, presented to the chapter by Miss Mattie Goodman for the purpose of raising funds for the same. The drawing was done by two little blindfolded girls, Miss Mattie Stofen and Miss Ada Sydnor. The seventy-ninth number, drew the prize, Granville Harris being the lucky winner. The drawing over, the Sonoma Brass Band struck up and an enjoyable hop was had till 12 o'clock. This was one of the most pleasant gatherings of the season.

The World's Champion.

Mr. Edward Hanlan, the great oarsman, and until his recent contest with Beach in Australia the champion of the world, may certainly be looked upon as an authority in everything affecting athletic sports. Before leaving Australia for this country he wrote a letter in which he stated that he used St. Jacobs Oil with the most beneficial results. He found it a reliable remedy for muscular pains in the arms and limbs, and from his personal experience took great pleasure in recommending it. No stronger proof of the truth of what is claimed for St. Jacobs Oil could be furnished than this, and it will undoubtedly carry great weight with all thoughtful and intelligent people.

Any one wishing a brand new double-barreled, breech-loading $75 shot-gun for $60, would do well to call at this office and examine the same. *

SANTA ROSA NEWS.

[Daily Democrat.]

Second crop Zinfandel grapes are bringing $16 per ton.

A rumor is afloat to the effect that $20,000 was offered for Anteeo after he made a record of 2:16.

Several cars of Mission grapes are being shipped daily from Santa Rosa to a firm in San Francisco. The price received is $14 to $20 per ton.

For the first time in ten years the warants on the County Treasury are reigistered for want of funds to meet them. It seems quite strange to creditors of the county. They are not used to it.

A good many famers in this vicinity are hauling pickets for the purpose of building fences as soon as the rains sofen the ground so they can be driven easily. Pickets are lower this season then they have been for several years.

Mrs. M. G. Vallejo of Sonoma sent to a lady in this city a box of oranges, lemons and pomegranates grown at Lachryma Montis. They will be photographed Thursday, and then will be exhibited in a show window on Fourth street.

A Mr. Blanch was brought to Santa Rosa on Wednesday for medical treatment. While chopping wood in Guerneville he was caught by a falling tree and suffered a compound fracture of the right leg, besides being severely bruised in other parts of his body.

Lin Colgan, who is employed in the blacksmith shop of Colgan & Hervey, had a small bone of his right leg broken on Wednesday while in a friendly scuffle with Jas. Anderson, who is employed in the same shop.

Last Tuesday and Wednesday Marshal Mock and Geo. Morshead took up collections for Mrs. Hoffman, widow of the late Chas. Hoffman, amounting to $114 40. She is in destitute circumstances, and has four helpless children depending on her for support.

Martin Redmond, a well known resident of this city, was instantly killed at Tiburon, on Wednesday evening, by being crushed between two box cars. The body of the unfortunate man was fearfully mangled. We were unable to get the particulars of the accident. The deceased was a son of Patrick Redmond of this city, and was a deputy clerk in the Recorder's office.

We regret to announce the death of Mrs. Mary A. Rodgers, which occurred very suddenly at her residence on College avenue last Tuesday night. She retired as usual at about 9 P. M., apparently in good health. Not making her appearance at the usual hour in the morning, her little granddaughter went to her room and found her dead, she evidently having been dead some hours, as the body was cold.

On Sunday next Judge Moore expects from the East his sister and brother-in law. When he left his home in the East thirty-five years ago he was just 19 years of age and his sister was 15. They have not seen each other since that time, and the meeting on next Sunday will be strange and interesting. Judge Moore wonders how they will be able to find each other, as it will be recognized by the other.

Officer Mead succeeded, with the aid of several policemen in the city, in arresting Ah Foh, who it is claimed was the instigator of the murder of Ah Sing on the 30th of last June. The prisoner was arrested at 11 o'clock at night in a shirt factory in San Francisco. He pretended to be greatly surprised, claiming that he was never in Santa Rosa, and knew nothing whatever about the affair. The officers feel pretty sure, however, that they have the right man. He is at present in the County Jail.

Officer Tom Harris returned on Friday with John B. Jackson, the brother-in law of William Crist, who left here several months ago with a team and wagon belonging to the latter, for the lower country. Mr. Crist loaned Jackson the team for several days, and as he did not return it at the specified time, the Sheriffs of the adjoining counties were notified of the fact. Several weeks ago a telegram was received here from Woodland stating that a team and man answering the description given were in that neighborhood. A warrant was issued for the arrest of the man, and an officer left on Monday for San Luis Obispo, where he found Jackson, who said that one of the horses had died, and that he had sold the other one, together with the wagon and harness. Jackson expressed much surprise that his whereabouts had been discovered and that he was in the custody of an officer. Shortly after his arrival in Santa Rosa, Jackson was arraigned in Justice Sargent's Court, who remanded him to the custody of the Sheriff, and set his examination for Tuesday, at 2 P. M.

RESISTANT VINES

Interesting Report of a Napa County Vintner.

The following has been sent to the agricultural experiment station of the University of California. It shows the experience of the writer with resistant vines and may prove of value to many of our readers, hence we give it place in these columns:

TALCOA VINEYARDS, NAPA,
October 24, 1885.

Prof. E. W. Hilgard—Dear Sir: As you desire reports about resistant vines, and grafting thereon, I will give a short resume of my experience here on perhaps the most difficult and varied piece of ground to be found in the State; being "spotted" with tough adobe, hardpan alkali, poor stony soil, and rich alluvial lands, and therefore a harder and more severe test for them than is ordinarily found. The new vineyards at this place, comprising about 150 acres, were planted by me mostly in 1882. The varieties planted were for immediate bearing: Lenoir, Aerbemont, Cynthiana, Rulander and Nortons Virgina, all æstivalis varieties; and for grafting, about 10,000 wild riparia seedlings, 15,000 Clinton, and some few thousand each of other riparia varieties, such as Elvira, Missouri Riesling, Taylor, Uhland, Amber, Pearl, Marion, etc. Each variety runs, in most instances, from one end of the vineyard to the other, thus getting the benefit or disadvantage, as the case may be, of a variety of soils. In another piece of land we planted rupestris cuttings the same season, which also have about the same diversity of soils. I find a great difference in growth on the different soils the most vigorous being on the alluvial and adobe, the poorest on the hard-pan alkali. This may be considered applicable to all varieties planted, although the Herbemont seems to grow and succeed best on all soils. A piece of about an acre of the last named variety, planted in 1881, has been in partial bearing for two years, has always set its fruits well and ripened evenly. The same was the case this year, when it bore a very heavy crop, many of the vines producing 40 to 50 lbs each, and ripening their fruit evenly and well, the must showing 24 degrees on Balling's scales on the 5th day of this month. All the æstivalis varieties, however, need a six-foot stake, and long pruning on canes or arms, to show their full bearing capacity. The same may be said of the Rulander or St. Genevieve, which set well and bore a splendid crop on three-year-old vines, must showing 26 degrees Balling the 28th of September, when we picked them. The Lenoir, Norton's and Cynthiana set but a very light crop, owing, as I think, to the high winds which prevailed here all summer. They ripened early in September, Lenoir showing 27 degrees, Norton's 30 degrees, Cynthiana 32 degrees Balling, the must being of an exceedingly dark color, purplish black. All promise to make very fine wines, and as the vines are yet too young to show their full bearing capacity, I hope for a better yield next year. In the spring of 1884 we grafted what was strong enough of the wild riparia and the riparia varieties, although from the difficulties presented by the soil already mentioned, we had an uneven stand. Our method was cleft grafting, and has been described before. We grafted on the wild riparia seedlings, as follows: Sultana, Green Hungarian, Sauvignon Vert, Marsanne and Franken Riesling (Sylvaner). A part of the last two varieties, five rows, were grafted on Elvira, running parallel through the blocks with the riparia. The great majority of the grafts took well, made a firm junction and a very strong growth where the vines were on favorable soil, but on the Elvira the success was rather more uniform and the growth stronger than on the wild riparia. The balance of our grafts were mostly on Clinton, which proved a much more satisfactory stock than I had anticipated, being in that respect as good as the will riparia, and taking the graft readily. The grafts on Clinton were Herbemont, Lenoir, Pedro Ximenes, Chauche Gris, Traminer, Rulander or Grey Clevner, Petit Pinot, Gamay, Teinturier, Mataro and Grosse Blaue. The Taylor, although a very strong grower, does not seem to take the graft as readily as the three varieties named before, as our success was not as uniform and satisfactory. The grafts produced some fruit last year, were pruned for bearing last winter, according to their strength, the most of them bore very heavily: with a great difference, however, in the same variety where they were exposed to the full force of the wind or sheltered by the hillside, the latter producing more than double. The yield was especially heavy on Green Hungarian, Marsanne, Sauvignon Vert and Mataro. In a good many instances we gathered 30 to 40 pounds of Marsanne and Green Hungarian from a single graft, and the growth of wood for next year's crop is also strong and well ripened. The junction is so complete that it is hardly perceptible now, and the whole operation is a complete success. The branches were very large and heavy, and the berries full size and of excellent quality, as a number of visitor, Messrs. E. H. Rixford and Wickson among them, can testify. Our wines, made from each variety separately, are fully fermented and many of them clear now. When the time comes I shall take great pleasure in sending you samples of them for tasting and analysis. I am fully satisfied that instead of losing time by planting resistant vines and grafting them, the grafts will bear more and earlier than the same varieties would do on their own roots, on account of the increased vigor caused by the stronger growth of the stock. As to the alleged inferiority of the fruit and wine of such grafts, it seems too ridiculous for any one at all familiar with the laws governing horticulture, and the influence of the stock on the scion, to need refutation. In the case of grafts on vines, I have found, during a practice and observation of 35 years, that a stronger stock also imparts a more vigorous growth of wood, and we all know that the more vigorous the tree or plant, the larger and more perfect will be its fruit. That such stronger growth also requires longer pruning to equalize the strength of the root and top, is self-evident, but I have yet to learn that our growers would object to the increased yield resulting therefrom. In my opinion, the greatest perfection of the grape depends upon having just as much to bear each season as it can ripen in perfection. If we overload it, inferior, insiped fruit will be the result, and a feeble growth of wood, which will also not ripen fully. If, on the contrary, we prune too short a rank succulent growth, black knot, coulure, etc., will be the result, and the fuit will also suffer accordingly. On this nice balancing of the powers of the vine, more of the success of the vintner depends than many are aware of. That resistant vines, planted on soil of ordinary fertility, are and will be a success, I am confident beyond a doubt. That thousands of acres have been planted to vines in this State, which are entirely unfit for resistants or any other vines, I am also convinced, and the sooner our people learn that even a grapevine will not grow in waste and barren places, too poor to produce even sagebrush, the better it will be for the industry. Yours sincerely,

GEORGE HUSSMANN.

HEALDSBURG ITEMS.

[Enterprise, Oct. 31st.]

The City Hall is being rapidly pushed forward to completion. During the week the iron tanks for the jail arrived and were put in place. The vault has also been constructed, and workmen are now engaged upon the roof of the building.

Last Monday at about 4 o'clock P. M. the schooner "Haskins," loaded with lumber, broke loose from her moorings at the mouth of Russian Gulch and was wrecked. The crew stayed with the vessel till the last, when they took to the small boats and landed at Fort Ross. The loss is complete.

Mr. George Saum, living near Healdsburg, has, for some time past, been experimenting in what is called "Grape Milk." His efforts have at last been rewarded. He has now on hand about four hundred bottles of the pure grape juice, which he pronounces not only a good substitute for tea, coffee and other stimulants, but more beneficial to health. Mr. Saum speaks from experience, having discarded tea and coffee and drank nothing but "Grape Milk" for several weeks.

BY THE RIVER.

[C. R. Crespi in Detroit Free Press.]

A little while ago I was a child;
A simple child, with thoughts that children think,
And stood with children on the river brink
And only saw how gently and how mild
The stream met flowed; nor saw how fierce and wild
In — far west, where the long sun rays drink
The ocean storm, the furious waves, would sink
Some noble ship; nor knew that sin-defiled
Men seek to end their sorrows 'neath the wave.
A child no more, I find myself outbourne
Farther and farther from the friendly shore,
And scarcely wonder that, when trouble-worn,
For aken souls look here to find a grave.
Alas! that I can i e a child no more.

How Bronzes Are Cast.

[English Illustrated Magazine.]

To make the matter clear I will suppose that one of the first artists of the day has modeled a statue which is to be cast in bronze. The statue is a seated female, half draped. She has bare feet and raised arms. The drapery is full or narrow, deep folds designed to show and emphasize the movement of the figure. The statue is cast in plaster as soon as the model in clay is finished, and is handed over to a bronze molder —"art founder" he will probably style himself. The first thing he will do will be to cut off the arms, because it is so much easier to mould them separtely. They have to be then cleaned up with chisels, punches and files to remove the lines left on them by the means of the mould, the latter having been made of many pieces fitted to each other in the same way as piece-moulds are made in plaster.

The seams left on plaster casts by these latter are familiar to every one. If there has been deep or intricate under-cutting in any part, as in the hair, the ears, or the drapery, probably this has been quietly filled in by the founder—to the destruction of the artist's work—in order that it may be easier to mould. I know of one instance in particular where a very important national monument was so treated, to the disgust of artists. The nation was none the wiser. All these pieces having been cast and scraped up must now be put together. This is done partly by means of screws and rivets, partly by braising the the parts together, according to circumstances. These joints have then to be worked over with punches and files, in order that the exact line of jointure may be concealed; indeed, it is often requisite to work over several inches on either side to effect this purpose. Sometimes, what between the lines of the mould that have to be removed and the joints that have to be worked over, there is but little left of the touch of the original artist.

Easter Lilies in Bermuda.

[Croffut's Bermuda Letter.]

The onion is a loud-smelling plant; but there is a Bermuda offset to it—the Easter lily. This queen of odorous flowers grows here all the year round in the open air, and attains a majesty and fragrance unknown elsewhere in the world. On the Trinsdad came down Gen. Russell Hastings, the father, I believe, of this curious industry of furnishing Easter lily bulbs to the New York and London markets. He began it three years ago, and this year will send off 500,000 bulbs. I visited his lily farm, "Soncy," yesterday—a sort of fairyland on the winding shore of the inner harbor.

Scattered over the estate arose the luxuriant tropical growths of the island —palms of many kinds bearing fruity clusters; varieties of cactus—the club, the maguey and other sorts; the bamboo, tall and supple; the mangrove, standing tiptoe on its rooty stilts along the margin of the warm cove; the oleanders trimmed for a windbreak around the roses and lily field. The lilies were cultivated in rows, like onions, and thousands of them are now spreading their great snowy blossoms to the sky, and burdening the air with sweetness. These are of no value whatever, and sometimes they are torn off and destroyed systematically, in order to give vigor to the bulb beneath.

In all the fields, even those containing several acres, all the lilies turn to the sun, like obedient soldiers to their commander. Perhaps it would be more nearly correct to say that they turn to the light; for it is noticeable that they turn resolutely away from the shadow, even if it be necessary to set their backs to the sun. This often happens on the southern fringe of a field.

Alcohol from Wood.

[Independent Drug Journal.]

The manufacture of alcohol from wood has become an important industry in many counties in Tennessee. Wood when subjected to a heat of from 400 degrees to 800 degrees, is resolved into charcoal, pyroligneous acid and hydrocarbon gases. The first of the products, carbon or charcoal, is a fixed fuel. This acid is made up of crude acetic acid, wood spirit, creosote, tarry compounds and water. The third division of wood products is made up of uncondensable hydro-carbon gases. These fixed gases constitute a very valuable fuel. The proportion of these wood products are about as follows: Charcoal, one-quarter of the original weight of the wood; pyroligneous acid, two-quarters, and the uncondensed gases one-quarter.

The Three-Horned Ox.

[Arkansaw Traveler.]

Dr. A. T. de Rocheburne has described to the Paris Academy of Science a well-established variety of domestic ox, which is peculiar to Senegambia, and is characterized by a third horn growing from the nose and identical in constitution and development to the two frontal horns. The animals are very liable to epizootic peripneumonia, and from time immemorial the Moors Fulahs of Senegambia have practiced upon the creatures preventive inoculation with the virus of that dread disease.

—Comparing the returns of the last twelve or fourteen years, the London Insurance Journal thinks it by no means improbable that at the end of present century the total premium income of the life insurance offices doing business in England will have reached £23,000,000 sterling, and the interest on investments £8,000,000. It expects claims to amount to £16,000,000, the total life insurances in force to $670,000,000 sterling, and the total funds to £240,000,000.

Value of Money.

[Ouida.]

You think money is not interesting, but you are wrong. It is the Haroun-al-Raschid of our day. It is the wand of Mercury. It is the sunshine of life. Only fancy, if you chose you could with money make the desert blossom like the rose; you could call up a city like Paris in the center of Mongolian steppes. That is very interesting indeed. Money itself is not so; but when one considers its enormous influence, its fantastic powers, it is so; it is even more, it is positively bewitching.
